

RAIN AND DROUGHT

Freak storms end what most of us thought was a lovely summer and bring relief to the parched countryside. The cooling, life-giving rain drives hard enough to please anybody, you'd think. There's just buckets and buckets of it everywhere - except at Staplecross. It just didn't seem to get round there somehow. It's quite a small place near Hastings but with a big problem - Water! Mr. Dawson waits hopefully at the village pump, but pump as you like, there's nary a trickle!

And here comes the rest of the village on the same quest. Report says there's a tanker with nearly 900 gallons from Battle, but you've got to produce coupons for it!

One gallon per coupon! Mr. Gladwish does the rest. One penny per gallon,  $\pounds$  isn't much, but one gallon is precious little for a household.

Mr. and Mrs. Cutting and Mrs. Wolfe find an ample source, though it'll be a bit thick in the clear! But it's water that's the main thing. Elsewhere they heard every drop of rain. Funny stuff, water. You don't value it until there just isn't any! Like beer!

RE/08

Freak storms end what most of us thought was a lovely summer and bring relief to the parched countryside. The cooling, life-giving rain drives hard enough to please anybody, you'd think. There's just buckets and buckets of it everywhere - except at Staplecross. It ~~XX~~ just didn't seem to get round there somehow. It's quite a small place near Hastings but with a big problem - WATER! Mr. Dawson waits hopefully at the village pump, but pump as you like, there's nary a trickle!

UP

SC.8.

And here comes the rest of the village on the same quest. Report says there's a tanker with nearly 900 gallons from Battle, but you've got to produce coupons for it!

UP

SC.13.

One gallon per coupon! Mr. Gladwish does the rest. It costs just one penny per gallon, but one gallon is precious little for a household.

UP

SC.20.

Mr. and Mrs. Cutting and Mrs. Wolfe find an ample source, though it'll be a bit thick in the clear! But it's water that's the main thing. Elsewhere they heard every drop of rain. Funny stuff, water. You don't value it until there just isn't any!