

U.S. TENNIS DOUBLES FINAL

At Brookline, Massachusetts, the U.S. Doubles Final pits America's Vic Seixas and Australia's Mervyn Rose against Frank Sedgman and Ken McGregor -- and produces some of the fastest, prettiest volleys ever caught by the newreel camera. Sedgman and McGregor, the Australian, French, English and American champions are heavily favoured - but Seixas takes this point.

McGregor serves from near left court - and the ball begins to fly!!

It's another point for Seixas and Rose, nearing victory in the fourth set.

Sedgman serves from the far right court, just one point from defeat. But they take this point and keep alive while Seixas and Rose moan. The battle enters its fifth set. McGregor serves in near left court.

Seixas and Rose get this one.

It's match point! Seixas serves from near left court -- and the gruelling, three hour battle ends in victory for Seixas and Rose. America's singles champ, Vic Seixas, and Australia's third ranking player, Mervyn Rose, capture the U.S. Doubles Crown.
