

AMERICAN TENNIS FINALS"Little Mo" retains title

Maureen Connolly and Doris Hart meet in battle for the Women's National Crown. Serving from far court is seventeen-year-old Maureen from San Diego, California. Doris Hart hits into the net - and it's Connolly's point.

Here's match point - with Hart serving from near court. Miss Connolly's greater strength and speed have kept her ahead in a closely fought contest and now she puts it on the line to win in two straight sets, six-three and seven-five. Maureen Connolly, who last year was history's second youngest player to win the title, shows that age hasn't dimmed her talents by making it two national tennis championships in a row.

Sedgman keeps crown

In the Men's Final, Australia's Frank Sedgman meets Gardner Mulley of Miami. A capacity crowd at Forest Hills sees Mulley spin the racket for serve and court - but soon it's Sedgman who has Mulley spinning.

Sedgman serves from far court - and shows his mastery from the very beginning. The Australian, last year's winner, puts one where Mulley can't reach it - and takes this point.

Mulley serves from near court. Sedgman is running away with the match - and again he puts the ball where Mulley isn't.

Mulley serves on match point in a crushing, one-sided contest that is to last only forty-seven minutes.

Mulley knocks the ball out -- and the overwhelming triumph belongs to Sedgman, 6-1, 6-2, 6-3. Victor and vanquished meet at the net.

The undisputed tennis champions of the world - Maureen Connolly and Frank Sedgman.

107435-2
TENNIS
TTTT

Youngson Donaldson

American Tennis Finals (22)

X Maureen Connolly and Doris Hart meet in battle for the Women's National Crown. Serving from far court is seventeen-year-old Maureen from San Diego, California. Doris Hart hits into the net -- and it's Connolly's point.

X Here's match point - with Hart serving from near court. Miss Connolly's greater strength and speed have kept her ahead in a closely fought contest and now she puts it on the line to win in two straight sets, six-three and seven-five. Maureen Connolly, who last year was history's second youngest player to win the title, shows that age hasn't dimmed her talents by making it two national tennis championships in a row.

X In the Men's Final, Australia's Frank Sedgman meets Gardner Mulley of Miami. A capacity crowd at Forest Hills sees Mulley spin the racket for serve and court - but soon it's Sedgman who has Mulley spinning.

X Sedgman serves from far court - and shows his mastery from the very beginning. The Australian, last year's winner, puts one where Mulley can't reach it - and takes this ~~set~~ point.

104355-

TENNIS (2)

Mulley serves from near court. Sedgman is running away with the match - and again he puts the ball where Mulley isn't.

Mulley serves on match point in a crushing, one-sided contest that is to last only forty-seven minutes.

Mulley knocks the ball out -- and the overwhelming triumph belongs to Sedgman, 6-1, 6-2, 6-3. Victor and vanquished meet at the net.

The undisputed tennis champions of the world -- Maureen Connolly and Frank Sedgman.