

HAILE SELASSIE ACCEPTS ERITREA

Haile Selassie, Emperor of Ethiopia, and his Empress leave their palace at Addis Ababa and, through the capital's streets packed with people, drive to the old Imperial Palace. Here a huge crowd waits to hear the official announcement of the federation of Ethiopia and Eritrea from the Emperor's own lips. Eritrea, an Italian colony conquered by the British, has been under our control for seven years. Now, with the approval of the United Nations, she is united with her neighbouring country, Ethiopia.

Into the throne-room of the Imperial Palace comes Haile Selassie, the Lion of Judah, to sign the Federation Act that will unite the two countries. The Emperor, who has done much for the people of his own country, will bring a firm but just rule to the land of Eritrea.
