

RUGBY LEAGUE: ENGLAND BEATS WALES

England meet Wales at Wigan for the first International Rugby League match of the season and after a quick try early in the game, England, in white shirts, attack again. O'Grady's get the ball, but Welshman Lambert brings him down. Now for a thrust by Lodgard, but Williams tackles and the ball gets hustled into touch - and how!

Passey's got the ball, and he's going through the Welsh defense to give England their second try! -- Lodgard's conversion makes the score England 8, Wales nil.

Looks like the ref's lost the ball, too! - but here comes another England attack. Horne gets the ball out of the scrum and passes to Burnell who crosses the line to give England their third try.

Lodgard takes the kick -- and there it is -- England 13, Wales still no score. But back come the Welshman and Lambert's making a 75-yard run to give his team their first try today. At half-time the score's England 13, Wales 5. Here comes another attack from the Welshman. Gallick kicks ahead - Horne (England's captain) beats him to the ball - but Gallick brings him down by the scruff of his neck.

It's nearly the end of the match, but the Welshman are still fighting hard, and here's Price making a diagonal run to give Wales their second try! -- But when the whistle goes to end the match, England have won by 19 points to Wales' 8.
