

MUNICH OCTOBER FESTIVAL

Although it's called the Munich October Feast, 800,000 local people can't wait that long and, in September, they start their annual fortnight of eating, drinking and making merry through the streets of their city.

Just as soon as the colourful procession is over, everyone gets going on the grab. Literally thousands of chickens are eaten daily, but no-one has dared to calculate the amount of beer that is drunk in the fortnight!

Just think of it, there'll be 800,000 calling for brews-seltzer in the morning.
