

SCOTLAND DRAW WITH IRELAND

Irish skipper McMichael wins the toss against Scotland at Hampden Park, Glasgow - so Scotland kick off into a stiff and cold wind. It's been raining pretty hard too, and the ball's difficult to control. Irishman McMorran is halted by Brennan - he slips the ball to Jimmy Logie, who's making his debut for Scotland today. And Jimmy's away towards the Irish goal.

Tommy Wright centres for Scotland - team-mate Liddell leaps to head, but he's beaten by Graham. Now Ireland go into the attack. They've been playing well so far and seem to be getting on top - but they still haven't scored.

Centre-forward McMorran tries a shot and down goes goalie Farn to save for Scotland. The ball goes out to Aitken who makes for the Irish goal.

Uprichard slips as he faces a challenge by Tommy Wright - but Tommy's robbed by a spectacular slide-tackle. There's still no score when play resumes after half-time, Scotland try to put the matter right - but Uprichard saves and Ireland breathe again.

Play swings to the other end - out comes Farn to tackle Darcy - but Farn's injured and play's held up for a few moments.

Only about ten minutes more to go and Ireland are pressing hard - Darcy shoots and it's in the net!

Only a couple of minutes of play left and Scotland haven't given up the struggle. Spurred on by the Hampden roar, they're fighting back.

Young gets the ball and has a slam - up goes Lawrie Reilly to head - and it's a goal! Scotland snatch victory from the Irishmen, and make it a draw in the last thirty seconds of the match.
