

F.I.D.O.

Blackbushe Airport in Surrey is lit by flames as the FIDO system is ignited. "Fog, Intensive Dispersal Of" is FIDO's full name. Invented during the war to clear fog-bound airfields, it is being tested tonight for civil use and all those aboard the aircraft will be asked for their reactions to the flight. FIDO is an expensive luxury. For this demonstration alone, enough petrol is burnt to keep a 10-horsepower car running for about a million miles!