

IKE'S XMAS

On Christmas morning Dwight and Mamie Eisenhower attend a service at the Columbia University Chapel in New York. Later at their home, the Eisenhowers join grandson Dwight David junior under the mistletoe before gathering round the tree with the rest of the family. The President-elect's son John is still in Korea with the army, but eleven-month old Susan finds grandpa almost as much fun.

Susan's mother and elder sister Barbara Anne watch Ike try his hand with David's electric trains. Next year the Eisenhowers will spend Christmas Day in the White House.

X France is plunged into her eighteenth cabinet crisis since the end of World War II with the sudden resignation of Premier Antoine Pinay, who had held office nine months.

X Foreign Minister Schuman is among the former premiers called by President Auriol for talks on a new cabinet. Edouard Herriot, the doughty, old Radical Socialist, is summoned, but the thankless task of forming a new cabinet falls to George Bidault, twice before premier.

X In New York, President-elect Eisenhower spends Christmas like millions of other Americans. In the morning, with Mamie, the general attends a carol service in the Columbia University chapel.

X Later, in the Eisenhowers' holly-bedecked home, they have fun with grandson Dwight David 2nd before gathering around the tree with the rest of the family to inspect their presents.

X Little Susan, eleven months, likes her spoon better than any toy.

X Susan's mother, Mrs. John Eisenhower, and sister, Barbara Anne, three, watch the President-elect take over David's new electric train. Next year, the Eisenhowers will spend Christmas Day in the White House.

X The typical American community of Woodland Hills, California, names Harry M. Warner "Man of the Year." Harry Martin, president of the Men's Club, presents a special citation to Mr. Warner as Congressional Medal of Honor winner Major Raymond Harvey joins in applause.

X Mr. Warner, president of Warner Brothers, is cited for his patriotic service to the nation and to the community. From all walks of life, citizens salute Harry Warner as a good neighbor and a patriotic American.
