

"OPEN" GOLF OPENS

Once again, Carnoustie is the scene of the Open Golf Championship. Max Faulkner, who stands a big chance, is all dressed up and rarin' to go. Already having a go is Cerda from Argentina.

Frank Stranahan is one of the top-ranking American amateurs. Chatting together are E.D. Hamilton and the Italian competitor Grappasanni. A hot tip for top honours as always is Dai Rees.

South African Bobby Locke, present holder of the Championship, is already in top form. Van Donck, a Belgian professional, gets in a spot of practise before the battle begins. In the championship for the first time is Ben Hogan, America's No. 1.

Irishman Fred Daly is soon well in his stride. As usual, crowds turn up in their thousands to try and pick the winner. Up with the favourites is Ben Hogan, though he didn't fare so well in the first round. But, with a brand new Burnside record in his pocket, Bobby Locke is a strong favourite.
