Dear Bill and John,

Enclosed is a fairly interesting story taking place in Nottingham on Sunday. On the surface it doesn't seem very much, but I think you will agree on sitting down and reflecting, that it has possibilities, owing to the fact that 50 people are being baptised, and that the church itself is going to be built by the people of the Clifton Estate.

I suggest that at the foundation stone ceremony the bricklayer, stonemason, scaffold engineer, and electrician, who are going to do the job, should be on line. You may get pictures of the stonemason and carpenters working or preparing. You need a General-View of the location of the town, the site of the church, and a diagram of what the church is going to look like.

I think you have a fair story here if you build it up.

Yours sincerely,

G. T. CUMMINS.
