EDINBURGH FESTIVAL.

A full-scale Military Tattoo proclaims that once again it's Festival time in Edinburgh. Now in it's seventh year, this brilliant international event goes from strength to strength, so what better than a Highland Fling?

The performers are a team of 104 dancers drawn from many Scottish Regiments, and the whole colourful pageant is performed on the floodlit esplanade of historic Edinburgh Castle.

The massed pipes and drums of the Scottish Regiments leave no foreign visitor in doubt as to where he is. It's Scotland - it's Edinburgh - it's Festival time - a combination which increasingly has come to mean an occasion unique in the cultural life of the Western World.
