BRAEMAR GATHERING.

The Queen, and the Duke of Edinburgh are welcomed by Lord Aberdeen and Captain and Mrs. Farguherson, when, during their Balmoral holiday, they attend the Braemar Gathering. And what more fitting welcome than the massed pipes.

The pipes set the tempo again for an expert display of the Highland Fling.

The Royal Party, which includes the Queen Mother, sees the start of the days sport. Hey, that's no way to treat a haggis!

Twenty-eight pounds - that's the weight they're chucking about. And here's the man who puts it furthest, G. Clark from Grange. Now for the laddies who chuck each other about.

What's a slipped disc or two between friends, it's been a wonderful day - well most of it anyway.
