PARIS: CATCH OF THE SEASON.

A giant 58 ton whale arrives aboard its specially-built trailer at Les Invalides in the heart of Paris. It's no fisherman's tale, it really is a whale. Caught off Norway, Jonas (that's what they call him) has been carefully preserved by a special process. Nearly a million people have already paid to see him during his travels throught Norway, Germany and France. And not even the sights of Paris has to offer can rival him for his popularity. Men go down into his stomach every day to check the refrigeration plant, that's been installed there to make sure his best friends wont have to tell him. But all being well, Jonas is expected to stay as fresh as ever for another three years.
