TORIES CONFER.

Almost on the heels of the Labour Party, 4000 Conservatives, led by Lord Woolton, their chairman, arrive at Margate for their annual conference. Now Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Butler, makes his way into the Winter Gardens. With his wife is Mr. Anthony Eden back again as Foreign Secretary following his illness. High-spot of the meeting is a fighting speech by the Prime Minister who gives the delegates heartening news of the British Guiana problem:
