

NOBEL PRIZE FOR CHURCHILL.

King Gustav Adolph of Sweden and Queen Louise walk to their places in Stockholm's great concert hall where the presentation of Nobel prizes is to take place. Sir Winston Churchill is unable to be present himself to receive the Prize for Literature, so Lady Churchill is to accept it on his behalf. Other prize winners take their places for the ceremony.

Mrs. Soames, Lady Churchill's daughter, is with her mother. The "Grand old man" of Swedish Literature, Dr. Siegfried Siwertz asks the winners to accept their prizes. The awards are made for outstanding contributions to science and the arts, particularly those which further world peace. Now Lady Churchill is asked to accept the Literary award on behalf of her husband.

The name of Churchill is added to the short list of the all-time great in the world of literature.
