CIRCUS NEWS:

At a circus in Sheffield, (Not Blackpool this time) the boss of the show, Billy Smart meets young master Crossfield (just fifteen years old) who's got what they call a lion's heart.

Young Albert, Stan Helleway told us about,
had got one as well you recall.

He tempted a lion in the zoo, so tis said,
and got swallowed up - 'art and all.

But Ced (that's his name) has a love for all lions,
to train em's his daring idea.

So into the ring he goes with a smile,
while his mum and his dad quails with fear.

There's a real 'appy ending to our little tale.

Young Ced, for his pluck and his cheek, has become a trainee-lion trainer -
and starting at four quid a week.

Next time you hep on a bus, remember too to check if there's a circus down your way. You don't see why? Nor did this bloke - when he got on.

Yes, a real live bear. A member of the zoo that travels around with the Smart Circus, he's the hero of this shaggy bear story.

Now for the moral to our tale - Have you guessed it - "it's never heard a bus with a bear behind"
