ICE-TROTTING, CANADA.

Out in Canada, they don't let a bit of snow stop their horse-racing, on the contrary: for on Lake Bemmock, the first in a chain of lakes which stretch almost across Nova Scotia, they're getting everything ready for an International trotting race - on ice. Horse-racing has been going on in this lonely spot for about 120 years, but, with the thermometer reading 15 degrees below, its never been as cold as this for a meeting. The field races up behind a mobile starting-gate which is moved away from them as they come into line.

Lusty's Queen, driven by Bunny Walker, is out in front up the last stretch. An American entry is in second place.

Lusty's Queen holds her lead right up to the post, and wins by a good margin. The handsome silver trophy stays in Canada, thanks to Lusty's Queen and Bunny Walker.
