NEW BRITISH TANK.

A new, highly manoeuvrable British Tank, the "Conqueror" has been developed by the same team which designed the Centurion. Still on the secret-list, the tank may not be photographed in close-up, nor are many details released about its performance or striking-power. But the calibre of its very long gun seems to be about 120 millimetres. Powered by the latest type acre-engine, the new tank is known to develop very high speeds even over rough country. Its gun, which seems to be stabilized both vertically and herisontally, is almost certainly superior to the Joseph Stalin III, the Red Army's most powerful tank.
