

b-018701

PATHÉ JOURNAL

6 - RUE FRANCOEUR - 6
PARIS (18)

Paris April 26th. 1954

OPENING SESSION OF GENEVA CONFERENCE
Pathé Journal's cameraman material
Positive UNDEVELOPED: 80 meters = 270 ft

Arrival at the United Nations Palace in Geneva of the FIVE Foreign Ministers :

United States, France, Great Britain, USSR and Red China.

Interior views of all delegations taking their seats for opening session of Geneva Conference.

GENEVA: TALKS START.

32

Again Geneva plays its part in the world's constant endeavours for peace. 19 delegations, from both sides of the Iron Curtain, attend a conference on the many Far Eastern problems. Mr. Chen Sh-Lai, Prime Minister of China, arrives. Next is Mr. John Foster Dulles, America's Secretary of State.

UP

61

Mr. Molotov, Russia's Foreign Minister, and Mr. Gromyko enter the Palais des Nations. Now M. Bidault, the French Foreign Minister, who will press for Anglo-American help in Indo-China. Next, Mr. Anthony Eden, whose memory must surely harken back to the days before the war when he figured so prominently in this same building when it housed the ill-fated League of Nations. So violently do East and West seem opposed on such matters as the future of Korea and, of course, Indo-China, that it will take great patience and wisdom from all if satisfactory solutions are to be found.