VINTAGE CAR RALLY.

Edinburgh Castle is the starting-point for an Anglo-American vintage car rally. Ten British and ten American veterans are to drive to Goodwood, 850 miles away. This Vauxhall's forty years old. Many go back to Edwardian days; 1906 saw the birth of this Ford, known as the "Six Forty Speedster", one of the American entries.

Yes, a Rolls Royce; a 1910 Silver Ghost. Now a 1913 Loxier with American Red Blood at the wheel. The Lord Provost of Edinburgh is to send the old-timers on their way. First to answer the starting flag is the 1906 Ford. The marathon is not a race, but points are awarded for performances. The only steam-driven car competing is a 48 year old Stanley Steamer, which does about ten miles per gallon of water. Amy goes the Silver Ghost. The vintage rally is part of the "Come to Britain" campaign and the route takes the visiting drivers through many of our beauty spots. So now its Goodwood or bust-and, from the looks of things, it could be either!
