M. Ps ABROAD:

Sir Robert Boothby and Mr. Ralph Assheton take a trip along the Perak River during their tour of Malaya. They and three other M.Ps are making a short visit to the country. At the Palace of His Highness the Sultan of Selangor, the full delegation is entertained. Mr. Assheton, Blackburn West's Conservative M.P. chats with His Highness.

The party is split into two groups, and Port Swettenham, one of Malaya's busiest ports, is visited by Sir Robert Boothby and Mr. Assheton, who leads the delegation. The other M.Ps are the Reverend Sorenson Sir Roland Robinson and Mr. Percy Morris. At Port Dickson, Mr. Assheton and Sir Robert prepare for a dip. During their stay, the visitors have been studying the war against the terrorists. But, in their few leisure hours, they haven't neglected the lighter side of life in Malaya.

Meanwhile, Mr. Clement Attlee comes home again from his round-the-world trip. His two daughters, Felicity and Alison, are there to welcome him. Mr. Attlee visited Russia, China, Australia, New Zealand, America, and Canada. His wife joined him in Singapore. At the foot of the gangway, Mr. Attlee kisses his nineteen month old grand-daughter Jennifer. Much criticism, particularly from America, has been levelled at Mr. Attlee and the other Labour M.Ps who accompanied him into China, but Mr. Attlee says their visit helped to relax tension in the Far East.
