Hurricane Hazel begins an eighteen hour reign of terror as she sweeps in over the South Carolina coast and screams inland.

With gale winds and drenching rain, the hurricane smashes Toronto.

The surging floodwaters trap one victim in a tree -- rescuers try desperately to reach him. Finally, he is saved, brought to safety in a rowboat and -- exhausted and suffering from exposure -- rushed to a hospital.

Canada is hardest hit by the final punch of the Caribbean-born storm -- more than eighty die and damage totals over one hundred million dollars.

For Toronto, it's the worst storm in history. Rivers driven out of their banks by the heavy rains wash out bridges -- crumbled monuments to the awesome might of "Hurricane Hazel."
