

10528-6

At Grossinger's, New York, they roll out the barrels and carry off the skaters in the fifth annual international men's barrel jumping championships.

Barrel jumping, history says, started in Holland some three hundred years ago and man still hasn't been able to find a way to end up, straight up.

Adding another barrel stretches the obstacle course to fifteen -- kayo this would-be champion.