

CHURCHILL ON HOLIDAY.

Historic surroundings for a man of history - Sir Winston Churchill holidaying in Sicily.

He has with him his brushes, palette and easel. And when the weather improves he intends painting the beautiful villa where he is staying, the 2,400 year old harbour, and the Old Greek Theatre.

At the Latomie, Syracuse's great caves, Sir Winston sees where thousands of Athenian soldiers were imprisoned by the Syracusans in 413 B.C., that battle heralded the decline of ancient Greece.

Meanwhile, becoming increasingly refreshed by his holiday Sir Winston is talking of publishing yet another book - the history of the English speaking people. Eighty last birthday, with a crowded life behind him, and still going strong - What a man!
