

THE QUEEN'S PORTRAIT.

The Royal Academy holds its 187th exhibition - and among the paintings on show are Terence Cuneo's "The Coronation" and a portrait by Sir Alfred Munnings called "Who's the Lady".

Sir Winston Churchill's "Sunset at Reehampton"

By James Gunn, a portrait of the Right Honourable Lord Bailey shows great strength and realism.

The cause of much controversy because of an alleged preference shown it - Simon Elwes' portrait of the Queen. This picture is said to have been given pride of place over a similar portrait of Her Majesty - this one, by Pietro Annigoni. In actual fact, Pietro's is the better, say the experts.

---