

AFTER THE BIG FIGHT.

After a tigerish and successful fight to keep his world heavyweight title, champion Rocky Marciano is surrounded by triumphant fans at the Kezar stadium, San Francisco.

Echoing in Don Cockell's ears are the ringside cheers earned even when the fight was stopped; for the valiant courage of the British challenger won unanimous applause.

With the scars of battle on his battered face, it will be a long time before the man who never gave up forgets his tough fight.

While some American sports writers are even now accusing Marciano of many fouls, gallant Don tries not to show his disappointment. One American headline later sums it all up with "Rocky world champ, Don, champion of courage"
