

AIR NEWS:

Arriving at London Airport is the first British pilot to have flown the Atlantic 500 times - Captain Stuart Scott of Shaftesbury, Dorset.

Countless celebrities have flown by him - now he's one himself! Scott - of the Atlantic!

Another new celebrity of the air is greeted at London Airport by Lady Miles Thomas - Air Stewardess Ann Price, home from Johannesburg after winning the international "Queen of the Air" contest.

Ann, aged 23, wins a ring worth £2,000 as well of her title "Queen of the Air"

From Uxbridge, Middlesex, she's a great credit to British girlhood. And aren't Mum and Dad proud.
