

EISENHOWER

Weist-Fitzgerald

President Eisenhower returns to West Point as an "old grad" --, wearing his class armband as he mingles with classmates of nineteen ~~nineteen~~ fifteen -- like General Omar Bradley -- now retired with the others.

Old Glory flies over the Plain where the President attends the retreat review. He meets and congratulates Cadet Delbert Jacobs of Seattle and presents the Eisenhower Trophy for Military Psychology and Leadership.

Twenty-four hundred cadets parade in the retreat review as the president once did forty years ago. An alumnus receives West Point's salute.