ROYAL DEPARTURE FOR NORWAY.

At Rosyth, near Edinburgh, the Queen and the Duke arrive to join the royal yacht "Britannia" for their State visit to Norway.

For the first time in history, artificer apprentices of the Navy provide a guard of honour for a reigning monarch. Their training establishment at Rosyth turns out a guard a hundred strong, colour party and band.

The Queen and the Duke board Britannia which as usual is dressed overall for the occasion.

Aboard the royal passengers are welcomed by Vice-Admiral Abel Smith, Flag Officer Royal Yachts. The moorings are cast off, and she glides away with the Royal Standard flying.

Goodbye to Britain, and a safe journey across the North Sea to Oslo and Norway's welcome.
