

THE QUEEN GIVES A PARTY.

With the temperature in the eighties, it's one of those days when it's better to be a woman in a summer frock than a man in a morning suit. The scene is Buckingham Palace - the occasion, a Royal garden party.

Princess Margaret is here, having a word with one of the military guests. While the Queen Mother keeps cool under a sunshade.

With so many people, the Royal family at these events always split up so that the largest possible number have a chance to meet them.

For people of many callings and from many countries - a day to remember.