

55/71

OIL FIRE.

At Whiting, Indiana, fire rages out of control at a Standard Oil Company refinery after an explosion in a gasoline unit which killed two persons and sent hundreds fleeing for their lives.

Tank after Tank explodes as the fire burns on for more than two days. Firemen are helpless and estimates of the damage rise above ten million dollars in one of the biggest and most furious outbreaks has ever known.