SIR WINSTON GETS THE WINKLE!

Sir Winston Churchill, as Warden of the Cinque Ports, is presented at Hastings with a portrait of himself in the robes of that ancient office. But on Winkle Island in the Old Town a less formal ceremony awaits him. Field Marshal Montgomery drives there with him.

Hastings fishermen are proud of their famous Winkle Club. Members must produce a winkle on demand, or pay a sixpenny fine. Monty's a member already, and now it's Sir Winston's turn.

Mr. Bunk Harggrey, secretary of the club, meets the new member. As he's rather a special recruit, he gets - not an ordinary winkle, but a solid gold one.
