

BELTON WINS MOTO-CROSS.

Only a motor-bike or a mountain goat can make any speed over this sort of country - at Montreuil, near Paris. And if there are any mountain goats around, they keep safely out of sight today. It's the International Moto-Cross Competition, for the President of the Republic's Prize. Moto-Cross - that's short for motor-cycle cross-country - in case you hadn't guessed.

Here's Ward on an A.J.S., one of Britain's two entries, leading a field which includes an American, two Belgians, and half-a-dozen Frenchmen.

The ground is tough, but who cares? Half the time they're not even touching it!

They can't see Ward for dust - a British rider winning an international event on a British bike! Just like old times!
