BRITANNIA SHIELD.

Defence Minister Selwyn Lloyd hands the Britannia Shield to the R.A.F. after their boxing victory over the U.S. and Dutch Air Forces at Wembley. And a rictous victory it is too! Highlight of the evening is a real slugging match between American light-heavyweight Sylvester Banks, in dark trunks, and L.A.C. Peter Spearman of the R.A.F.

So you wanna fight? come outside!

Hey, boys! This is the ring - back here!

Trouble is, each of these lads wants the ring to himself. If they go much farther, the ref will need binoculars.

Now it's Spearman's turn to do the pushing. Try shoving him head first - he'll go through easier that way.

Hey, stop, that's was the gang! There's always something interfering - if it's not the ropes, it's the timekeeper.

Now for the third round - and it's time the R.A.F. really get moving. There's not much fight left in the Yankee boy now, but Peter's got plenty more to deliver.

Wow! Banks has really had his chips. The ref thinks so too, and he stops the fight.

Come on, Sylvester - this is the way home?
