

SCOTLAND'S QUEEN OF INDUSTRY.

From towns and cities all over Scotland, sixteen finalists in the "Daily Record" Queen of Industry Contest come to Glasgow for the judges' final verdict. Here's Miss Aberdeen - shorthand-typist Isobel Duff. Among the judges is cinema chief Sir Alec King.

The winner will have a free trip to America as ambassadress of Scotland's industry. This is Alice Gordon, South Glasgow's choice. Alice is a punch operator.

Mary Stitt, Miss Dumfries - a window-dresser.

If anyone wanted proof that there are as many lovely lassies in Scotland's factories and offices as ever came from the Highlands and Islands, here it is! The judges hand up their voting cards - and the title of Queen of Scotland's Industry goes to No 2 Isobel Duff - Miss Aberdeen! Mary Stitt and Alice Gordon are the runners-up.

So it's 23-year-old Isobel Duff who will fly to the United States to represent the hundreds of thousands of girls who work in Scottish industry. Typist Isobel also gets a £50 cheque and a complete wardrobe for the trip. Congratulations!
