SCHOOLBOYS' EXHIBITION.

It's 28 years since the first Schoolboys' Exhibition and whatever's happened since then the old favourites still draw the crowds - the captain's bridge, and of course these eternal fascinators, the trains. Just for once, a chap can enjoy a train without father wanting to run the whole show.

Come to think of it, unless the old man happens to be a signalman, this little lot would stump even him.

But even if trains are our first love, there's a lot to look at which wasn't here 28 years ago. Radio-controlled boats, for instance.

Models are the best fun of all when you can work them yourself. How about a spot of air-sea rescue?

Try your strength, sir? Don't look now, but there might be an Olympic talent-spotter in the crowd.

Hey, mind the roof!
