GOLDHERRS IN NORTH GERMANY (60 m - rough cut)

A cold spell in North Europe lamed shipping in many ports. The fish-trawler H.F. 379 returned from the Northsea to Hamburg - Altona after a fishing cruise round Helgoland.

At the mouth of the Elbe breakers-coming abroad chilled in moments to ice. The whole ship was covered with a thick coat of ice. Returning to port the crew had to work overtime to remove the icy supercargo. The temperatures went down to below 35° Centigrade.

Since ten days the 2,179 British freighter "Baltrover" stranded in a howling storm near St. Margarethen at the mouth of the Elbe. Owing to the low tide it was impossible to free the ship, which is now also endangered by the ice.
