

56/17.

LADY EDEN OPENS B.I.F.

At Earl's Court, London, Lady Eden opens the consumer goods section of the British Industries Fair.

For the first time, the Earl's Court event includes the biggest display of British toys ever held. There's plenty to interest the young visitor as well as the important foreign buyer.

For sixpence you can be seasick..

Sorry - space-sick.

While Junior's visiting Saturn, there's plenty to keep the grown-ups occupied - everything from contemporary landshades to traditional porcelain. This Crown Derby jay costs £26.

Or you can have these at £200 guineas a pair in Aluminium. Perhaps it's cheaper to buy a clock. Take your pick!

This tureen, made for an arab sheik, holds four gallons of soup, he must like the stuff.

If you want a cigarette, ask the lady with the lamp, or if you want to know the time, ask your umbrella.

Or if you want to put bristles in your own toothbrush, you can install this little gadget in your bathroom. All you want now's a machine to spread to toothpaste.