

GAZA CLASH

Dag Hammarskjold, United Nations Secretary-General, leaves Igdda for the Gaza Strip on his mission of peace, as the Israel-Egypt frontier flares into violence yet again. This time it's an Israeli border settlement that has suffered; as usual, each side blame the other for provoking the clash. It is incidents like this Hammarskjold is trying to eliminate.

Israeli officers question closely every Egyptian prisoner brought in.

A Military funeral behind the lines for Sergeant Fadain - a young Israeli soldier killed in one of the frontier skirmishes. Israel and Egypt bury their dead - and finger their triggers. The whole authority of the United Nations Security Council - and also of world opinion - is behind Dag Hammarskjold and Truce Supervisor, General Burns, as they seek an answer to this threat to the peace of the world.
