SICILY MOTOR RACE.

Italian ace Castellotti, in a Ferrari, starts on the 670 mile Tour of Sicily race. Also driving a Ferrari is Britain's Peter Collins. In the early stages it's Castellotti who makes the pace, but engine trouble soon puts him out of the running, and a battle for leadership starts between Collins and Taruffi, driving a Maserati.

This is one of the most gruelling races in Europe - mile after mile of corkscrew roads, with little room for overtaking. And because the starting times have to be staggered, no driver is ever sure of his exact position in the race.

Here comes Taruffi's Maserati - in the lead, with what he hopes is a safe margin in hand. But with the race nearing its end, Peter Collins is closing the gap. Taruffi reaches Palermo, believing he has won.

But no! Peter snatches victory by 53 seconds - and to crown his achievement, he's broken the Tour of Sicily record as well!
