

WALES v. IRELAND.

Wales (in the striped shorts) meet Ireland at Cardiff in the last but one of the season's soccer internationals. The home team are soon on the offensive, giving goalie Uprichard plenty of work to do.

Welsh right winger Cliff Jones centres, but from a goalmouth tussle it's headed out to the other wing.

Roy Clarke beats his man, and centres - and Trevor Ford misses his chance!

Lockhart tries to pass, but loses it to Harrington. Welsh skipper Alf Sherwood runs back to collect.

Sherwood to Harrington - he passes to big John Charles, who starts a magnificent run down field.

Charles to Ford - Ford leaves the ball to Clark who collects and it's a goal!

Wales one, Ireland nil. The Welshmen do their best to increase their lead - here's Cliff Jones centering again - but Cunningham stops it.

Soon after, Wales are awarded a penalty - but Uprichard saves magnificently.

Wales start the second half with another attack, but again Uprichard clears, and Ireland start fighting back. Billy Bingham receives and kicks upfield to Jimmy Jones - who beats Kelsey! One all, two minutes from half time!

Now it's Ireland on the attack, with a vengeance. The forward line sweep down on the Welsh goal. The ball comes to Mallroy, who centres to Jimmy Jones. Jimmy swings a lovely shot, but Jack Kelsey's there - hard luck, Ireland!

Wales counter-attack, but the fire has gone. Norman Uprichard clears to Billy Bingham - Bingham collects it, and passes inside to Cunningham - and now it's Ireland all the way. But thanks to goalie Jack Kelsey, Wales manage to keep it at a draw, in spite of Ireland's splendid second-half comeback which confounded all the prophets!
