

CANNES FILM FESTIVAL.

To the Film Festival at Cannes, on the French Riviera, come the brains and beauty of the World's picture industry. Diana Dors is in danger of getting writer's cramp, and she's not the only one. Outside the star's hotels, autograph hunters are waiting to pounce.

Associated British Star Richard Todd is in great demand.

Yvonne Furneaux sitting with Michael Pertwee. Cannes is the international shop window of the film world, with half its population busy taking photographs and the other half busy being photographed. Diana Dors again, with Vernon Grey. But after all, there are films to be seen as well, though you'll have to be pretty good to outshine the glittering scenes in the theatre vestibule. Here's Yvonne Furneaux once more.

Nobody's sure if Cannes is a Film Festival or a battle of glamour - but the latest report from the front is that the morale of our troops is quite outstanding!
