HORSES IN THE HOUSE:

Four-legged pets are really part of the family in this Bavarian home. Children and ponies are seldom more than a few yards apart, day or night - whether they're eating, sleeping or playing.

The family runs a private steeplechase - though they're not all old enough to join yet. But at mealtimes, it's every man - or child or pony - for himself, and although the children get a head start, it's not always the first comers who get the most.

Authoress Lisa Gast is the family breadwinner - when she gets a chance. She gets no peace till the children's bedtime, and even that is interrupted.

All right, the day's over - let a girl get some sleep.

Lights out. Sleep well - there's another strenuous day ahead.
