

103807-2

56/75

PRISON RODEO.

It's open house to the public at the Oklahoma State Prison when the inmates hold a full-scale rodeo. Don't ask us what heading this comes under in the penal code - occupational therapy, perhaps. In Oklahoma, anything can happen - and when it does, it happens with a bump.

Now for something really tricky - the Brahma bulls. Even if the prison gates were wide open, they wouldn't get far on one of these!

Here's a new stunt for the programme. The man who can take the ribbon off the bull's horns wins a prize in the prison canteen.

These boys may have a reputation for taking things, but this is a tough customer. If there's any justice in Oklahoma, they should look up that bull!