PRISON RODEO
Fitzmaurice

September 20, 1955 (Leo)

At the Oklahoma State Prison at McAlester, it's open house to the public and the guards have something to watch beside their charges. It's the annual prison rodeo. And the inmates are the star performers in a wild and woolly round-up!

They really take a horsin' around!

He wants to get back where it's safer!

Now they tackle the Brahma bulls. Even if the gates were wide open they wouldn't get far on these critters!

And here's a new stunt. The man that can take the ribbon off the bull's horns wins a prize in the prison canteen! These boys may have a reputation for taking things, but this is a tough customer. If there's any justice in Oklahoma they should lock up that bull!
