MRS. U.S. NAVY.

At Long Beach, California, the Fleet's in - and by the appearance of the flagship, the aircraft carrier St. Paul you'd think this was a naval review. You'd be wrong it's a much more important occasion. Navy Secretary Charles Thomas is greeting the finalists in the "Mrs. U.S. Navy" contest. The idea is to find the sailor's wife who's done most to further her husband's career.

And the winner? Attractive Mrs. Beverly Ellis of Norfolk, Virginia, who walks up with her husband to be congratulated by Secretary Thomas. With Beverly to help, this sailor should be an Admiral any day now!
