

CONSERVATIVE CONFERENCE.

Llandudno is the scene of the last of the year's big conferences - the gathering of the Conservative Party. Harold Macmillan, Chancellor of the Exchequer, chats with Anthony Nutting, from the Foreign Office. Sir David Eccles, Education Minister, is here; Peter Thornycroft, Board of Trade; and from the Health Ministry, Pat Hornsby-Smith.

Labour Minister Iain Macleod - and G.R.H. Nugent, from the Ministry of Agriculture. Not delegates, but very much in evidence, as they were at the Labour Party conference - are the Union Small Shopkeepers.

Randolph Churchill, himself an outspoken writer, faces his fellow-journalists - and here's William Yates, the line voice against the Government's Suez policy. But Leader of the House, R.A. Butler looks equal to any critics!