

BADER IN AUSTRALIA.

Perth, in West Australia, gives a civic reception to Group-Captain Douglas Bader and his wife. "Tin-legs" Bader, the man who lost both his legs in an air crash nearly 25 years ago, but conquered his disability and became one of the outstanding fighter aces of World War Two, is now a businessman; but he spends much of his time giving encouragement to others who have lost their limbs - like these three youngsters who have one leg between them.

Bader's motto is: with courage, you can achieve anything. And who has a better right to say it than a man who, even with his legs, would still be a hero in any boy's eyes!
