GIRLS GO ON MARCH TO PROTEST RUSSIAN AGGRESSION

Anti-Communist demonstrators go on parade in the Vietnamese capital of Saigon. Composed entirely of women - this procession loudly protests Russian brutality in suppressing the Hungarian revolt. It's a demonstration similar to other that broke out all over the world when Soviet military forces crushed Hungary's bid for freedom.

With the northern half of what was once Indo-China now under Communist rule - the marchers also call for an end to Soviet infiltration throughout Asia. The protest is a timely one since the Reds have stepped up activity on both political and economic fronts in Southeast Asia.
